CRITICAL

ACCIDENT & EMERGENCY

- NHS in crisis as budgets cut
- A&E swamped, long waits for GP
- More of us on prescription pills
- Docs warn of care 'timebomb'

EXCLUSIVE by NICK McDERMOTT, Health Editor
THE National Health Service is at breaking point, an alarming analysis by The Sun shows.
 Record numbers are using GP surgeries – and swamping hard-pressed A&E units when they cannot get appointments. More people are also on prescription drugs, while budgets are being squeezed. A third of GPs told YouGov polls for The Sun that their local NHS has got worse in the past year. And leading doctors have warned of a “ ticking timebomb ” unless politicians act fast.
